

SUBSTITUTE ABSTRACT

A plug or socket connectable to a cable having at least one conductor and a shielding is formed of several subassemblies and has a tubular and at least partially metallic casing and an electrically insulating holder fitted in the casing. A contact in the holder has a press-fit connection secured to the conductor. A contacting element separate from the casing forms in the casing an electrical connection between the casing and the shielding.